Story

The birth of a success story

As a physiotherapist Emilie Creuzieux had to find out how to eat quickly at work, and was also trying to combine efficiency, healthy food and respect for the environment.

She discovered bento boxes through her love of the Japanese culture, and observing that she was not the only one to love it, she decided to commercialize it.

The bento mania is now on its way

monbento SA

Started in march 2009, monbento designs and sells its products to retailers since January 2010.

The company has been founded by 3 associates : Emilie – the CEO, Arnaud – webmarketing, and Fabien – design and production.

Monbento is based on a versatile and complementary team. The great experience of its members through several fields is the origin of monbento's success.

Innovation and creativeness are the key words of the company.

In order to propose a new range of products often, the brand continuously develops new bento boxes and accessories.

Several prestigious brands already trust monbento.

The company gains has a great coverage on the internet, television and press media.

«Bento» Spirit

A passion inspired from Japan

Bento is a Japanese term referring to a meal in a container eaten outside the home.

Deeply set in the Japanese food culture, they come in a great range of shapes and colors and can be used anywhere: as a snack in the train, a lunch for workers, during a picnic under cherry blossom trees or as a snack for kids.

The Japanese use it every day to bring their lunch at work or to carry children meals.

The bento box has become a true fashion accessory in Asia and English-speaking countries

The food lovers will give free rein to their creativity, will have fun decorating their meal and share their small works of art with the whole bento community.

Eco-friendly and Reusable, bento boxes are perfect alternatives to disposable packaging. As you can keep the leftovers from your lunch, you don't waste any food.

Money-saving, with the advantage to carry easily your own prepared meal, you save time and money.
